

I am a multidisciplinary artist living in the Netherlands.

There is a Spanish saying that fits me well, “she was born with a pencil in her hand”. It pretty much describes me. Since childhood art is what I like doing the most.

I obtained my degree in Fine Arts at the Complutense University of Madrid in 1992. For 17 years, I worked for different companies as a graphic designer and art director with a successful career. During these years I participated in several exhibitions to give way to my artistic vain. Then I moved to the Netherlands in September 2009 and now I work as an independent artist.

My process is continually evolving using different techniques and media from paint and photography to scannography and monoprint. I enjoy manipulating my work, tickling with humour, or bending realities and abstracts. For example, my works include experimental photographs that exude an irrepressible desire to become a painting. Both means express my mood.

I am participating in exhibitions actively since 2013 mainly in the Netherlands where my art is warmly received and appreciated by collectors. My last exhibition was on 14 -15th April in Art Eindhoven 2018, Stand 90.
